"The most successful novel that Miss Glasgow has yet written."—BROOKLYN EAGLE.

The Battleground

By ELLEN GLASGOW

A strong and sympathetic story of the Virginia country the author knows so well, during the years of the Civil War. Dramatic pictures of stirring scenes are heightened in effect by a most delightful background of youthful life and love, by the quiet charm of the old-fashioned past generation of gentlefolk, and by the irresistible humor of the negro characters.

"The Thrall of Leif the Lucky," a Wonderful First Book.

The publication next Wednesday, by A. C. McClurg & Co., of Miss Otilie A. Liljencrantz's novel, "The Thrall of Leif the Lucky," is an event out of the ordinary in several respects. For one thing, it is to be hoped that this publication, made with considerable pomp and circumstance, marks the beginning of a renewed activity of interest by this old and prominent Chicago house in the fictional department of literature. By "pomp and circumstance" is meant that this book is issued with all the accessories of the publisher's art. The cover is attractive. The printing is good. The illustration is elaborate, consisting of full-page pictures reproduced in color from oils, end papers, and initial letters by Troy and Margaret West Kinney of Chicago. Altogether the volume is a pleasing example of the publisher's art.

Another thing about the book that is out of the ordinary is the subject. Eric the Red and his son, Leif the Lucky, were heroic figures in a heroic age. The one colonized Greenland; the other was the first white man to stand on the soil of America. The fierce old father was Odin's man to the end. The son, with passions no less strong, but better governed, accepted Christ and converted Greenland, despite his father.

A Wonderful First Book.

This, then, is the theme that a young woman writer has chosen for her first book—truly a daring choice. But the Northman blood in her veins has helped her to a sympathetic understanding, and patient care has shaped her story to her theme. She has written a wonderful first book.

In addition to the happy choice of a subject, the story has all the other qualifications of a successful novel. The characters have vitality and reality. The action is spirited and rapid. The interest is sustained. It is a story of success, not of failure.

So, too, the story has many excellences from a strictly critical standpoint. It is well planned, well written, and well told. Each chapter is complete in itself, with its own climax. The love making is sane and sweet. The fighting is real fighting, that one would hardly expect from a woman's hand. Then there are touches that betray the woman and add interest to the characters and the situations. The incidents, though sometimes daring, are cleverly handled. As a whole the story is convincing. While there is no plot, strictly speaking, there are unexpected turns, and situations within situations that surprise and stimulate interest. And, finally, the ending is both strong and artistic. In spite of temptations, the story comes to its climax when and where it should, with the characters in the right perspective.

So it appears that Miss Liljencrantz is doubly to be congratulated in that she has handled a daring theme successfully and has found publishers who appreciate the excellence of her work.

THE STROLLERS

"The Strollers" is a new note in fiction. The scenes are laid in that picturesque and interesting period of American life—the last of the stage-coach days—the days of the strolling player.

The author, Frederick S. Isham, gives a delightful and accurate account of a troop of players making a circuit of the wilderness from New York to New Orleans, travelling by stage, carrying one wagon load of scenery, playing in town halls, taverns, barns or whatnot.

The players undergo many adventures and hardships necessitated by such life,—pecuniary troubles and difficulties growing out of an excessive wave of temperance reform agitated by John B. Gough, that was running over the country at that time in the small towns.

Illustrated by Harrison Fisher. 12mo. $1.50.

POPULARITY OF RECENT NOVELS IN THE UNITED STATES

NOVELS MOST CALLED FOR AT PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Reports compiled in The New York Journal, March 8, 1902, from public libraries in twenty of the principal cities of the United States show, that in the list of thirty novels most called for, five of the titles (or one out of every six), are published by The Bowen-Merrill Company, viz.:

Lazarre. By Mary Hartwell Catherwood.

Alice of Old Vincennes. By Maurice Thompson.

My Lady Peggy Goes To Town. By Frances A. Mathews.

The Puppet Crown. By Harold MacGrath.

When Knighthood Was in Flower. By Charles Major.

The above statement is ample proof of the merit and popularity of these novels.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE BOWEN-MERRILL COMPANY will publish on the 25th inst. a novel in a new field, by Frederick S. Isham, formerly an editorial writer on the Detroit Free Press, entitled "The Strollers." The scenes of this story are laid in that picturesque and interesting period of American life—the last of the stage-coach days and the days of the strolling players. The book contains eight spirited illustrations by Harrison Fisher, who has given an unusual amount of care and study to his subject.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have under way another vigorous novel by Harrison Robertson, author of "Red Blood and Blue" and "The Islander." The new story is entitled

"The Opponents," and deals with latter day politics in Kentucky. The opponents, who encounter each other's rivalry in love as well as in the contest for election to Congress, are strikingly and dramatically contrasted. They have also in preparation a new novel by Benjamin Swift, author of "The Tormentor," etc., entitled "The Game of Love;" and a novel entitled "The Master of Caxton," by Hildegard Brooks, whose first novel, "Without a Warrant," won prompt recognition last spring.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have in preparation an unpublished work by the late Sidney Lanier, entitled "Shakespeare and His Fore-runners: Studies in Elizabethan Poetry and Its Development from Early English." It consists of two series of popular lectures. About an eighth of its contents has appeared in print, but the book is practically entirely new to the reading public. Among the subjects with which it deals are "Sonnet Makers," "Pronunciation of Shakespeare's Time," "Music," "Domestic Life," "Doctors," "Growth of Shakespeare's Art," and "Growth of His Spiritual Development." The book will be brought out in two volumes, elaborately illustrated with portraits, facsimiles, reproductions of title-pages and pictorial matter intended to give the reader the feeling and color of the time.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. announce that by arrangement with the Secretary of State, the Hon. John Hay, his recent memorial address on President McKinley will be included in their What is Worth While Series. More than usual importance attaches to the announcement that Messrs. Thomas Y. Crowell & Co. have their Virginia edition of the complete works of Edgar Allan Poe nearly ready for publication. This edition was announced over a year ago, but the discovery of valuable new material led to a revision and enlargement of the edition and necessitated delay. The chief editor is Professor James A. Harrison, of the University of Virginia—Poe's alma mater—who has been assisted by two other professors of that university and several editorial assistants. Access has been had to original sources—manuscripts and letters—with a result that will at once be apparent to the Poe specialist.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just published a new novel by S. R. Crockett, entitled "The Dark o' the Moon," a stirring story of love and adventure in Galloway, Scotland; also, a story of Indian and military life by Hamlin Garland, entitled "The Captain of the Gray Horse Troop." They will publish on April 8 "Philip Longstreth," by Marie Van Vorst, a domestic love story based upon the wide difference in the social standing of the two principal characters, one of whom is a young girl employed in a factory and the other the owner of the factory, a rich young man of high social standing. Mr. Howells's new novel, which the Harpers will publish in April, will be entitled "The Kentons," and not "A Family Affair," as first announced. After Mr. Howells had named the book, he concluded that "A Family Affair" was too suggestive of his other titles, in so many of which he has used the articles "a," "an" and "the."

Mr. Norton's previous translation, published ten years ago, has been accepted by the most competent Dante scholars as an exceedingly satisfactory rendering of the great masterpiece of Italian literature. But he has devoted years of further study to the work, and this new edition gives the results of the most careful revision, which secures a still more faithful reflection of Dante's meaning and a more rhythmic English version. Besides the revisions in the translation, many new notes have been added; the work is printed from new plates and brought out in attractive library form.

The odd name of Shalisha Pilgrim belongs to the heroine, who has been educated by her father as a landscape gardener. She becomes the gardener of an out-of-the-way country place in England, living in the old-fashioned comfortable dower house with her frivolous mother. The bailiff of the place is the impoverished representative of an old name. Between these two a love arises which has romantic developments. The ennobling influence of work and an outdoor life are special pleas throughout the story.

The authors state that this work has been written "to draw attention to what we believe to be new light upon the Gospel of Christ; viz., the light thrown upon it by the superphysical phenomena brought out by modern psychical research. In this new light, as is the purpose to make plain, the Gospel's veracity is exhibited and the Nazarene's inerrancy as a spiritual teacher is shown."

Godfrey, Eliz., [pseud. for Jessie Bedford.] The winding road. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1902. c. 3+359 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The story is of the love between a half gypsy genius and a woman willing to go against her nature and experience for love of him. The hero is only known as "Jasper," a wandering fiddler, who stays nowhere for any length of time. Illness forces him to take refuge with an English yeoman farmer, whose granddaughter Phenice inherits a strong love for music. The two love, and after a long hesitancy the girl casts her fate in with that of the fiddler. The outdoor atmosphere of the whole story is very delightful.

"The Assassins" was a military and religious order in Syria, founded in Persia by Hassan Ben Sabbah about 1090. The followers were remarkable for their secret murders in blind obedience to the will of their chief, who was known as "the old man of the mountain." This is a romance of the Crusades, at which time the order was subdued. It is full of plots and counterplots, torture chambers, etc., all of which have "the old man of the mountain" with his hounds, and his emissaries of death for central figures. It has likewise its love story.

Social (The) evil, with special reference to conditions existing in the city of New York: a report prepared under the direction of the Committee of Fifteen. N. Y., Putnam, 1902. c. 16+188 p. 12°, cl., net, $1.25.

The Committee of Fifteen called into existence at a meeting held at the New York Chamber of Commerce in November, 1901, to institute a searching inquiry, uninfluenced by partisan consideration, into the causes of the alarming increase of gambling and the social evil in New York, and to collect such evidence as might establish the connection between existing conditions and those who, in the last analysis, are responsible for these conditions. The committee was assisted by Alvin S. Johnson, Instructor in Economics at Bryn Mawr College. The work is divided into two parts, the first treating of the problem of prostitution; regulation in general and in Paris, Berlin and other cities of Europe; the sanitary and the moral aspect of modern regulation; probable effectiveness of regulation in New York, etc. The second part contains the recommendations of the committee which are strongly against segregating prostitutes in separate quarters of the city.

A beautiful society girl—Valerie Talbots—marries Captain Guthrie of the English army. For a few years they are happy, but debts contracted by Valerie before her marriage and concealed from her husband, together with an unreasonable jealousy of her husband's cousin, bring about an estrangement for a time. How this is patched up the story tells.
- Wide world (The). Bost. Ginn, 1902. c. 4+122 p. il. D. (Youth's Companion ser., no. 1.) cl., 30 c.
"The wide world," the first volume of the series, gives a brief, comprehensive survey of child life in Japan, Egypt, Holland, France, Switzerland, Sweden, South America, and Alaska. Adapted for reading in the sixth and seventh grades.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 22, 1902.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, should reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

PUBLISHERS' TRADE CATALOGUES.

To make information gained by the few practically available to the many has become an art, if not a science, in our busy age. The handbooks, codes, tables, etc., in which the facts of almost every trade have been put within the reach of its followers are models of clever systematizing, almost infallible accuracy, and wholly marvellous condensation.

Almost everything anybody desires or needs to know may be found within the covers of a book. Where is the special book wanted to be found? Elaborate catalogues of books covering certain periods, made with great care and at great expense, are beyond the reach of many booksellers, who are obliged, more or less, to rely for information upon the publishers' catalogues. For almost thirty years these catalogues have been bound up and furnished to the bookseller under the title of "The Publishers' Trade List Annual." This fountain-head, as it were, of information concerning the stock in trade of the publishers, is to be provided this year, for the second time in its existence, with a comprehensive index.

Much time and labor has been spent in devising a system for this index that shall enable the searcher to turn quickly to the publisher's catalogue for full information. Many of the catalogues that are to be included in this year's volume are accurately alphabetized and include a good individual index; but many more, unfortunately, are gotten up on a plan that would sorely try the patience of a man of leisure who might wish to look up information in them, say nothing of the busy bookseller.

Perhaps it is not too late to offer a few practical suggestions to publishers now preparing lists for insertion in "The Publishers' Trade List Annual" which would make their catalogues far more valuable to the bookseller, and without doubt would lead to the selling of more books. Time is the one thing that grows less as business and prosperity increase, and the book quickest found often sells ahead of the better book.

1. A publisher's catalogue primarily is intended for the bookseller and for others who sell books. There is no need of display, or pictures, or advertising "puff." To fit it to its purpose it should be printed in good, clear, uniform type, on good white paper of about forty pounds in weight, and 28 x 42 in size.

2. The catalogue should be arranged in strict alphabetical order. In looking quickly down a list, if an entry is missing from its proper position, the bookseller concludes it is not there, and is apt to give up the search at once. More often than not, his eye fails to catch the missing entry three or four words down, or perhaps on another page.

3. A uniform method of entry is to be desired, if not imperative. An author's books should either be put under his own name or under his pseudonym; they certainly should not, as happens quite frequently, be scattered promiscuously under both.

4. The full given names of the authors should be given in every case whenever known, not only the initials; of course the initials must answer if the given name cannot be ascertained. Many catalogues that are otherwise satisfactory give no initials at all. When about 200 catalogues are indexed, the same family name naturally occurs many times, and there is no way of alphabetizing accurately except by the names or initials.

5. If the cataloguer can afford to give a title as well as an author entry, let him never begin such entry with a, an or the, or their equivalents in foreign languages.

6. A short title index should accompany every catalogue, giving the page on which the book appears. These titles should be "catch titles" rather than verbatim titles. Customers seldom remember the exact title of a book.

They know who it is by or what it is about. Therefore the short title index should be so made that all books on one subject come together, and enable a bookseller to see at a glance what each publisher may have on a given subject.

7. Entries must not be duplicated, as different details about the same book in several parts of the catalogue are confusing. All information concerning one book should appear in one place only.

8. Publishers of long series should alphabetize them either under author or title, (author is preferable;) but they should decide on one or the other and keep the entries uniform. The series numbers may be affixed, but these need not be consecutive. If for commercial purposes the numbers are necessary, it would be well to include the series in both ways in the catalogue.

9. Every catalogue, if it only covers two pages, should be printed with the publisher's firm name as a running head on every page. Many catalogues are so printed that much time is lost to find the publisher's name. When the publisher's lists are put together in the "Trade List Annual" the convenience of such a running head will at once be appreciated. No matter where the book is opened the reader knows at once where "he is at."

10. The trade catalogue and the catalogues intended for distribution among the public should be kept apart. Some publishers to whom we have appealed in this matter have seen the advantage of a plain, condensed, alphabetized catalogue for the bookseller, and are reshaping their lists accordingly.

For the benefit of those interested, we reprint below the suggestions for a model trade catalogue, brought out in response to a Prize Question on Publishers' Trade Lists in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY some years ago:

THE BEST CATALOGUE.

I. Descriptive (full title) list. (a). Classified departments, with table of contents prefixed. [Note.—Whether the classification should be literary, as "Fiction," "Poetry," etc., or commercial, by specialties of the house and the like, will generally depend upon the size and character of the stock. The larger houses generally combine the two.]

(b). Arrangement in each department alphabetically by authors. [With two authors of the same family name, by first initials.]

(c). Entry, as follows: 1, author's family name; 2, initials and titles of author; 3, verbatim copy of title-page (abridging verbosity); 4, characterization of edition; 5, illustrations or maps; 6, number of volumes, only when more than one; 7, size; [We should add here: 8, number of pages (more important than is generally recognized); 9, year of publication; 10, styles of binding; 11, retail prices; 12, designation of "special" terms or books by asterisk attached to price.]

Pictures and press notices, except when brief and descriptive of the book, excluded.

Clear and well-balanced typography; author's family name in heavy-face type, replaced by dash in following works by same author. With more than one author of same family name, that name repeated at first book of each. Any explanatory notes in italics. First line of each entry flush, the others indented.

[The latter—such as
EPIDEMICS, Anstie's Notes on. 12°. Cloth, $1.
FREEMASONRY, Findel's History of. 8°. Cloth, $5—should be more frequent than in any existing catalogue, for it is exceedingly useful. In the larger lists containing a number of books on the same subject, such references as the following may answer:
CHEMISTRY. See Morton and Leeds; Muspratt, S.; Pelouze and Fremy; Rand, B. H., etc., etc.]

[Each title condensed into one line, where possible, but to include author's initials, edition, illustrations, number of volumes, size, binding, price (all abbreviated to the fewest possible letters), and asterisk for "special." We would also add reference to page of full-title entry, which can be managed best by placing small figures in parenthesis previous to the other particulars.]

[The type should be small (not too small) and clear. First words only should be in capitals and small capitals. New books (say those published since issue of previous catalogue) and books in press may be brought out in heavier face type, as in Harpers' list.]

[III. A supplementary list of new and forthcoming publications is often a useful feature, and may best precede the descriptive list, that the index may uniformly be found at the end. This will permit the insertion of new recent lists without interfering with the body of the catalogue.]

We may add to this that the trade-list should follow the now general style of a double-column octavo page, with the name of the firm prominently printed at the head, and for postal and ANNUAL purposes, as already pointed out, printed on a thin but opaque paper. A catalogue prepared on this plan has the advantage that it answers the purposes of the bookbuyer as well as the bookseller, while, if it is desired to distribute a catalogue widely at small expense, the second part serves a useful end by itself. It is to be remembered, however, that in examining a publisher's catalogue, very few would patiently read through an alphabet list, while every one readily examines a descriptive list comfortably arranged by departments. A full descriptive title is almost indispensable either for public or trade purposes. Books are frequently ordered from catalogues, and when they cannot be seen before ordering, the buyer should have the opportunity of seeing at least what the author puts on the "face," or what he promises on the title-page, which with every careful author is a matter of serious and long consideration.

For like reasons, such a catalogue is desirable to the salesman, who is also expected to secure orders for books not on hand, though in the ordinary course of business the bookseller is most frequently called upon for a known book, which he simply has to look up in an alphabetical list.

We trust publishers will take these suggestions practically to themselves, remembering that this advice gives the concentrated experience of the trade, as well as that of the indexers of the present volume of the "Publishers' Trade List Annual."

We print elsewhere in this issue a report of the joint meeting of the Pennsylvania Library Club and the New Jersey Library Association, held at Atlantic City on March 14-17, giving the details of a discussion of the effect of the net price system upon the public libraries. In lieu of editorial comment on the discussion we reprint below from the February issue of The Library Journal, a communication addressed by Mr. Charles Scribner, the president of the American Publishers' Association, to Mr. W. T. Peoples of the New York Mercantile Library, chairman of the American Library Association Committee on the Relations of Libraries with the Booktrade. Mr. Scribner, it seems to us, answers the charges made in regard to prices satisfactorily. Whether the American Publishers' Association can be induced to consider increasing the discount to libraries remains to be seen; it would certainly require more valid arguments to bring this about than those advanced thus far. Mr. Scribner's letter is as follows:

... "1. The publishers are not seeking to increase the prices received by them for their books. On the contrary, a careful review of our new net prices shows that the average price obtained by us is less than under the old system. The object of the association is to protect the retail dealer (upon certain books and for a year) from a ruinous cutting of the retail price—to make it profitable to deal in our publications.

"2. We have not attempted to fix the prices of books. Publishers fix their own prices without any interference by the association. What we are trying to do is to maintain the retail price for a year.

"I do not think the association would be willing to attempt any regulation of the retail price. If the prices of net books are in any cases too high it would be natural and right that such books should suffer, and I hope librarians will discriminate against them.

"Undoubtedly librarians are expected to pay more for their books, and this is necessary if the publishers wish to make it possible for the booksellers to supply net books to libraries at a profit. There may also be some cases in which prices are too high under the new system (as they would be under any system), but I think they are comparatively few in number. I have looked up the various books referred to, and in almost every instance the reason for the price is clear. In the case of Birrell's new book, published by us, though the price is $1, the same as the 'Obiter Dicta' volumes, published some years ago, it is forgotten that those books were published before the International Copyright Bill was passed, and therefore in competition with reprints not paying royalty. $1 is not an excessive price for the new book. Concerning the comparison of American with English prices, I would write that, so far as my experience goes, it is not customary to give much consideration to the English price when a book is protected by copyright. Upon the whole I think it will be found that the American prices compare very favorably with the English prices, particularly upon books of high class, but this is due to the business conditions in the two countries. We do not inquire what the English price is to be before we fix our own. It should be remembered also that when an English book is published net, there is no discount to libraries.

"As I have written before, it will give me pleasure to give any information desired by you or the other members of your committee. I might add that at the last meeting of the Publishers' Association a committee was appointed (of which Mr. Dodd is chairman) to look into the question of prices and discounts.

Yours very truly,

"CHARLES SCRIBNER."

WORK OF THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY.

THE annual meeting of the American Tract Society was held in St. John's Church, at Washington, D. C., on March 16. The Rev. Dr. Mackay-Smith, rector of the church, in the course of his address spoke of the past and present history of the Society at home and abroad.

The report of the secretary shows that thirty-seven new publications have been added to the lists of the Society during the past year, twenty being in English and the others in German, Spanish, Italian and Dutch. The whole number of publications issued in seventy-seven years in 153 languages or dialects aggregated 800,000,000. The number of periodicals circulated during the last twelve months was 2,600,000. The colportage work of the Society, the report says, was the printing and distribution of the Bible among those in destitution. In the sixty-one years upward of 16,000,000 family visits had been made. Colporters have been placed in Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit to work exclusively among the Poles and Bohemians. Christian literature to the number of 2,639,520 pages, printed in the Spanish language, had been sent to Cuba and the Philippines during and since the Spanish war, and 5,600,000 pages to other Spanish-speaking countries, 10,017,975 pages of Christian reading had been distributed in the army and navy.

NET PRICES AND PUBLIC LIBRARIES.

THE effect upon public libraries of the present net price system, as maintained by the American Publishers' Association was the most important subject of discussion at the joint meeting of the Pennsylvania Library Club and the New Jersey Library Association, held at Atlantic City, N. J., on March 14-17. Many librarians were present from other Eastern States, and the libraries represented in the discussion ranged from the smaller public libraries, such as that of Wilmington, Del., to school libraries like the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, college and university libraries, like Bryn Mawr, Drew Theological, Princeton and Harvard, large city libraries like those of Newark, N. J., Brooklyn and Baltimore, subscription libraries, like the New York Mercantile, and state collections like the New York State Library.

The subject was introduced by a detailed report by George F. Bowerman, librarian of the Wilmington (Del.) Institute Library. Mr. Bowerman spoke as representative of a committee appointed by the Pennsylvania Library Club to consider the question of net prices in relation to public libraries. He said that at the outset the fact must be insisted upon that there is no antagonism between publishers and booksellers on the one hand and librarians on the other. "There was a time, in the early days of the library movement, when booksellers and perhaps publishers looked askance at public libraries, considering that for every book sold to a public library five might have been sold to private purchasers were there no public libraries. Leaving out of the account the large number of school duplicates bought by libraries and reference books which private persons would never purchase, publishers and booksellers will now generally concede, I think, that the circulation of books by public libraries still further increases their trade by implanting in the minds of readers a desire to possess their own private collections of books. Everywhere that the public library goes it induces a love for books, but no public library takes the place of private libraries. Almost any local bookseller will agree that the public library in his town has greatly stimulated the purchase of books by private individuals."

It was stated that publishers, booksellers, and librarians were also united in their desire to perpetuate the local bookstore, and that the new net system, when planned, was regarded with favor by librarians, as a means of saving the local bookstore from annihilation by the department store. Mr. Bowerman added: "I have always believed that if bookstores of high grade, such, for example, as the Old Corner Bookstore in Boston, could be planted throughout the country in every town of any considerable size, they would do an educational work for their communities only less important than that done by the public libraries."

But the result of the net system had been to raise the cost of books to libraries far above the increase of eight or ten per cent. that had been expected. Careful tabulation of the increase of prices in a large number of series, in which comparison with former prices was possible, showed that "seven of the most prominent publishers have made an average increase in the net cost of their publications of 24 per cent. Analyzing this list we find that the per cent. of increased cost to libraries runs from 12 per cent. advance in the case of one item to a 36 per cent. advance in the case of three items. When it was first brought to the attention of publishers that there had been an advance in the cost to libraries, the publishers took refuge in the excuse that there had been an increased cost in paper stock, in labor and in advertising. It seems unlikely, however, that they will maintain that there has been an average advance of 24 per cent. in the cost of production. From the point of view of the librarian, this increased cost in the price of books appears to have been in large part an advance made for the benefit of the publisher himself, rather than for the much-beloved local bookseller. This is a serious matter to libraries. It simply means that with present appropriations libraries must buy 25 per cent. fewer books than in the past. City councils are ordinarily much more likely to reduce appropriations than they are to increase them. Every live library is constantly trying to get more and more readers. In turn, the demands of those readers are such that a larger and larger number of books must be bought each year to satisfy them. But this action of the publishers at once reduces by 25 per cent. our ability to supply the demand, provided it is no larger than that of last year, to say nothing of meeting progressively increased demands."

It was pointed out that, if the representations made to the publishers by local library associations throughout the country and by the national association of libraries resulted in no concessions, librarians would be obliged to meet the difficult conditions by devices and makeshifts in bookbuying. Among these a larger use of remainder catalogs, of auction sales, and of importation were suggested. "Every year it is possible from remainder catalogs, chiefly English, to buy at one-third to one-half price books published the year before, and then considered too expensive. There are large numbers of books which it is not at all necessary to have as soon as published, but which even though bought a year or so after publication are of the utmost value to libraries. These can be bought in practically new condition from remainder catalogs. The same is true in the case of purchases made through such auction houses as Bangs of New York and Libbie of Boston. Partly because English books are almost always better printed on better paper (if not in all cases quite so well bound) it is a wise policy for libraries to make large importations rather than to confine their purchases to books of domestic manufacture. New fiction of course costs more when imported than if bought at home; but in the case of a large number of other books, provided one can wait six weeks or two months, it is possible to get an edition equally good and frequently better, put down in New York at a lower price than the American edition can be bought." Instances were given of a number of publications, which if imported would cost libraries from 14 to 42 per cent. less than if bought here under the present discount rate. The fact was emphasized, however, that "if equitable conditions could be arranged libraries would prefer to buy American editions." In conclusion Mr. Bowerman said:

"To sum up, let us ask why librarians apply to publishers for a more equitable adjustment of prices, or if not that, then for larger discounts. Is it because libraries are philanthropic institutions, and for that reason deserve special consideration? By no means. Our reasons are based solely on business principles. In the first place, libraries taken collectively and in many cases individually are large purchasers, the business is steady and sure and all accounts are good; secondly, public libraries foster larger and larger private purchases, and thus make business for publishers and booksellers; thirdly, the reduction of their ability to buy enough to supply needs cripples their usefulness, discredits them locally and thus sooner or later will surely decrease the volume of their purchases; fourthly, it will compel them to reduce the purchases of current net books to a minimum, and devote available funds to purchases from second-hand, remainder and auction catalogues, and especially to importations. It may be assumed that publishers want the library trade. It seems to me that by the continuance of this system they are pursuing the best possible course to defeat that end."

This report was the basis of a general discussion. The reasons upon which libraries based their claim for better discount rates were stated as:

1. The simple commercial reason of their large and regular purchases. It was pointed out that the annual total purchases of most public, or college libraries was largely in excess of the purchases of many small retail dealers, who nevertheless received a discount more than twice as large.

2. The services rendered to publishers and to the book buying public in the publicity given to the books through the libraries. The shelves for "newest books," the opportunities offered for the examination of new publications, generally more full and convenient than the local bookstore afforded, were regarded as direct aids to the private purchase of books. It was stated that many local dealers when questioned about books that they did not carry in stock always as a matter of course referred the inquirer to the public library, where the book was frequently examined and the order for its purchase then left with the dealer; while libraries were always ready to give suggestions and information to intending buyers.

3. The fact that the library trade was generally a matter of pride and presumably of profit to many local dealers, and that the latter in most cases would be glad to grant better terms. Various instances were given showing that the present rule for library discounts was frequently honored in the breach, so that there was a great inequality of practice, that was essentially unfair.

A resolution was submitted, expressing the opinion that libraries should receive the same discount as local dealers. This was amended, on the suggestion of J. C. Dana that a definite rate should be asked for. The resolution, as adopted, is as follows:

"Whereas, The Pennsylvania Library Club and the New Jersey Library Association recognize that the interests of publishers and libraries are closely connected, and

Whereas, We believe that the present net price system instituted by the American Publishers' Association does not conserve the mutual interests of publishers and libraries,

Resolved, That the American Publishers' Association be requested to consent that dealers and publishers be permitted to give to libraries a discount up to twenty-five per cent. (25 %) on net books."

The general subject was taken up again in a later meeting, which was wholly informal and intended only for the direct personal interchange of opinion and experience. One of the projects discussed was the practicability of forming a national co-operative buying union on the part of libraries, with a selling agent in New York; although it was felt by others that concessions in discounts that would permit the employment of local dealers would be preferable, especially for the smaller libraries.

AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY ROBBED.

THREE employees of the American News Company, New York, and two outsiders were arraigned in the Jefferson Market police court on the 18th inst. on a charge of having robbed the company of several thousand dollars by systematic thefts of new magazines and periodicals. The prisoners were Thomas S. Haliday, of 198 Ocean Avenue, Jersey City; Henry C. Platt, of 302 Knickerbocker Avenue, Brooklyn; William McDonald, of 74 South Eighth Street, Brooklyn; John Manning, of 11 Madison Street, and Dave Coleman, alias Smith, address refused.

Manning, who keeps a news-stand in front of the Register's office in the City Hall Park, and his assistant, Coleman, were charged with receiving stolen goods. All were remanded to police headquarters.

The men were arrested early on Tuesday this week in front of Manning's stand. The three employes were delivering bundles containing 246 copies of the April issue of two magazines, which had been stolen from the company.

RARE SPANISH LIBRARY.

ARCHER M. HUNTINGTON, of New York City, has recently returned from Europe with 21,000 volumes and manuscripts for his private collection of Spanish literature, which is said to be unrivalled in the world. Mr. Huntington, in collecting his rare books and parchments, left the beaten paths of travel in Spain and struck across the mountains with a mule train, and unearthed the treasures of isolated monasteries.

The period of Spanish literature before the invention of printing is thoroughly covered by over 580 manuscripts in the collection. Of first editions the collector has a dozen copies of Cervantes's "Don Quixote," a "Cancionero General," "Romancero General," "Chronicle of the Cid," "Boscan," "Camoëns," "Lope de Vega Carpio;" also a "Camoëns," published in Madrid in 1609; a "Reportorio de Caminos" of 1546, a "Medina del Campo," and a "La Araucana of Ercilla," dated 1569, of which only one copy is known to exist.

Printing Committee.—C. E. Burkhardt, chairman; W. D. Parker, E. W. Johnson, and Desmond Fitzgerald.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

EDWARD EVERETT HALE will be eighty years old on the 3d of April. On a recent visit to New York City he boarded a crowded Broadway car for a trip uptown. As the New York Times tells the story: "A lad in a corner rose and politely offered the grand old man his seat. Dr. Hale took it, saying in his hearty way as he did so, 'Thank you, my boy, thank you. I'll do as much for you when you are eighty if I happen to be around then.'"

W. W. JACOBS, the author of "Many Cargoes," will bring out shortly a new book entitled "At Sunwich Port." Mr. Jacobs, according to the London correspondent of the New York Herald, is "a slight and fair man and looks considerably less than his thirty-eight years. As in the case of many others, it was some time before his talent was recognized by editors. The first of the 'Many Cargoes' series of stories was refused by thirteen editors before finally appearing in To-Day. Then, under the editorship of Mr. Jerome, who wrote asking for more, Mr. Jacobs started the humorous exploitation of the Lower Thames. One of the stories in 'Many Cargoes' was sent to the late Mr. James Payn, then editor of the Cornhill, and was refused by him. A year or two afterward Mr. Payn recommended the completed volume for the Academy's prize of the best book of the year. His unique knowledge of the Lower Thames was acquired by him with a small coaster which he possesses and when he was living at Wapping, where his father had a wharf. Two of his short stories have been dramatized. He has ideas of writing an original play."

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE death is announced of William Simpson, for many years the head of Puttick & Simpson, the well-known London auctioneers. Mr. Simpson had reached the ripe age of eighty-seven years.

THE REV. JAMES HARRIS FAIRCHILD, D.D., for twenty-three years president of Oberlin College, died at Oberlin, O., March 19. Dr. Fairchild was born at Stockbridge, Mass., November 25, 1817, and spent nearly the whole of his life at Oberlin College, as a student, as a member of the faculty and as its executive head. He was the author of a "Moral Philosophy," "Elements of Theology," "Woman's Right to the Ballot," "Needed Phases of Christianity," "Oberlin—the Colony and the College," and other works.

JOHN FRASER, secretary of the well-known English tobacco house, Cope Brothers, died in Liverpool, February 27. Mr. Fraser, who had a fine literary taste and a deep love of books, had charge of Cope's Tobacco Plant, to which many well-known literary men contributed in its day. He was also the editor of the series of booklets for smokers and the smoke room, among which "The Smoker's Garland," a collection of verses, and "The Smoker's Text-book," by G. Hamer, a charming reprint of choice bits, had a wide circulation.

DR. GEORGE WILLIAM WARREN, the well-known organist and composer, died on the 16th inst. at his home in New York. He was born in Racine, Wis., August 17, 1828, and early in life went to Albany, N. Y., where he entered the hardware business as a member of the firm of Warren & Steele. He became organist of St. Peter's and later of St. Paul's, both of Albany. Later he went to Brooklyn as organist in Holy Trinity and in 1870 he became organist of St. Thomas's Protestant Episcopal Church, New York, where he remained until 1900. He was the author of much church music, and was a composer of many scores. His "Tam o' Shanter" sold three million copies.

THE RIGHT HON. SIR RICHARD TEMPLE died in London, March 17. He was born in 1826, and entered the third class of the Bengal civil service in 1846. He was secretary to Sir John Laurence in the Punjab. He was Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, Finance Minister, etc., from 1868 to 1874; Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in 1875 and Governor of the Presidency of Bombay from 1877 to 1880, when he returned to England. From 1885 until 1892 he represented in the House of Commons the Evesham division of Worcestershire, and from 1892 until 1895, when he retired from Parliament, he sat for the Kingston division of Surrey. He was appointed a Privy Councillor in 1896. His published works include "India in 1880," "Men and Events of My Time in India," "Oriental Experience," "Cosmopolitan Essays," "Palestine Illustrated," "The Story of My Life," "Sixty Years of the Queen's Reign," "A Bird's-eye View of Picturesque India," "Life in Parliament and the House of Commons," and a life of James Thomason.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD's new story, "Lady Rose's Daughter," will begin in the May number of Harper's Magazine. The scene of the story is laid in the England of to-day, while the interest centres around a young girl whose gentle nature rebels against British society as found in town and country.

F. MARION CRAWFORD's new story will appear serially in The Sphere. It was to be entitled "The Harvest of the Sword," and was to include Dante, Paolo and Francesca and other characters of that period in its scheme; but after having written more than half the story on lines that did not give him satisfaction, Mr. Crawford destroyed his manuscript, and consequently postponed publication for some months.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE Llibreria L' Aveng, 20 Ronda de l'Universitat, Barcelona, has begun publishing a Revista de Bibliografia Catalana, which gives information on bibliographic and literary matters relating to Catalonia, as well as notices of libraries, catalogues and new publications in the Catalan dialect.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—C. M. Barnes & Co., Chicago, Bargain list of standard text-books. BUSINESS NOTES.

BEACON FALLS, CONN.—Miss Ella E. Wood has leased a store here, and will open a stationery and variety store.

CIRCLEVILLE, O.—Hiram Cook, the oldest book and stationery dealer in the city, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Mr. Cook is a veteran of the Civil War, and bought his book business in 1872 from George Miller. Assets and liabilities are placed at about $4100.

CONCORD, N. H.—Concord's "Corner Bookstore," established by Hunt & Emerson, has been purchased by Charles F. Nichols, who was for so many years one of the most popular railroad men in the State. Mr. Nichols has been resting for some years, but before that time, as a member of the railroad office force, as a passenger conductor and as the proprietor of the depot café at Nashua he made many friends who will wish him all prosperity in his new venture. He has taken a long step in this direction by retaining the services of Miss Elizabeth Dyer and Mr. John M. Runals, the heads of the book and art departments, respectively. This store has long maintained a standard in its own line surprisingly high for a city the size of Concord, and Mr. Nichols will see that there is no falling off therein. Hunt & Emerson were moved to this step by the continual increasing demands made upon Mr. Hunt, the senior partner, by his art publishing business, which he will continue, and by the ill health of Mr. Emerson.

CUMBERLAND, MD.—Harry K. Duke & Co., booksellers, have made an assignment.

GREENWICH, CONN.—S. Warren Mead has opened a book, stationery and music store in the Prescott Building.

LAWTON, OKLA.—Robertson & Phipps have succeeded Hurt & Phipps, booksellers and stationers.

LEBANON, N. H.—H. E. Waite has rented his bookstore to Charles Worcester.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—Thomas B. Clark has bought C. K. Ebann's book and stationery business.

MATTOON, ILL.—Walter Carr and John Kenny have opened a first-class book and stationery store.

MOUNT VERNON, MO.—J. Nickel has bought F. E. Gibson's book and stationery business.

NEW YORK CITY.—Coryell & Co. has been incorporated to manufacture books. Capital, $20,000; directors, J. M. Forbes, of Morristown, N. J.; V. M. Coryell, of Brooklyn, and J. N. Kinney, of New York City.

NEW YORK CITY.—In putting out a fire that broke out on the morning of the 17th inst., in one of the upper floors of the building at No. 14 West Twenty-second Street, a considerable portion of the stock of Francis P. Harper, the publisher and dealer in old books, stored in the rear part of the building, was damaged by water.

NEW YORK CITY.—The New Amsterdam Book Company has been incorporated. Capital, $50,000; directors, W. T. Henderson, R. W. Henderson, Brooklyn, and A. G. Dickerson, Jr., of New York City.

OXFORD, N. Y.—G. W. Quackenbush has bought H. J. Galpin's school book and stationery business.

POULTNEY, VT.—Charles Ripley has bought the book business from the estate of the late W. H. Hibbard.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—Nelson E. Funk, the secretary, Kauffman Funk and Walter Funk filed a petition calling for a receiver for the Western Book and Paper Company. The liabilities of the company reach $35,000, while the assets amount to only $2800.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The Blackwell-Wielandy Book and Stationery Company has begun business at Eighth Street and Washington Avenue.

SPRINGFIELD, MO.—John W. and James O. Fairbanks have bought the J. E. Whitlock bookstore.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

J. S. OGILVIE PUBLISHING COMPANY announce "More Ex-Tank Tales," by Clarence Louis Cullen, the author of "Tales of the Ex-Tanks."

JOHN LANE will publish early next month Henry Harland's new novel, "The Lady Paramount," a romantic story of the time of the Italian revolution of 1850.

THE AMERICAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION will publish at an early date "The Awakening of Anthony Weir," by Silas J. Hocking, and "Castleton's Prep," by Charlotte Murray.

JOHN MURRAY, London, will publish some time this year a further collection of Darwin's letters, edited by Francis Darwin, author of "Life and Letters of Charles Darwin."

THE POPULAR PUBLISHING CO., New York, will publish at once a story by an American authoress, entitled "The Price Inevitable." The book will be fully illustrated, and be issued in cloth covers.

G. W. JACOBS & Co., Philadelphia, have in press "Broader Bible Study," by the Rev. Dr. Alexander Patterson, the official lecturer on this subject for the Y. M. C. A.; also, "Religion for the Time," by the Rev. Dr. A. B. Conger.

THE attention of the trade is called to the fact that the price of "The Centennial Survey of Foreign Missions," by the Rev. Dr. James S. Dennis, is four dollars net, not $2.50, as it was inadvertently listed in the Index to Spring Announcements last week.

THE case of John Lane versus Temple Scott, in which the defendant is prosecuted for defalcation, came up for a final hearing on the 14th inst., before Judge Cornell, in the Sixth District Court, New York, and was sent by the court to the Grand Jury.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. announce that the first large edition of Ellen Glasgow's new story of Virginia during the years of the Civil War, entitled "The Battle Ground," was sold long before publication. A second impression will be ready immediately. Miss Glasgow's "The Voice of the People" is now in its 37th thousand.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will add to their excellent series of Home and School Classics

Herman Melville's "Typee," edited, with an introduction, by Professor W. P. Trent, of Columbia, illustrated by Henry Moore; also, De la Motte Fouqué's masterpiece, "Undine," edited by Mrs. E. Stuart Phelps Ward, illustrated after the famous pictures by Julius Höppner.

PORTRAYING political life in Washington, the anonymous novel "Democracy," though first published over twenty years ago, still presents a sufficiently vivid commentary on our Capitol as it is to encourage Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. to bring it out in a new form, when they print it this month for the sixteenth time. The name and even the sex of the author are still unknown.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will publish shortly Grillparzer's most popular drama, "Der Traum, ein Leben," with introduction and notes by Dr. Edward Meyer, of Adelbert College. This play has been recommended by the Committee of Twelve of the Modern Language Association for use in fourth year classes in schools, and should prove even more popular for college reading.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish during the summer three volumes in a new series, a Popular Library of Art, planned for the general public, namely "Albert Dürer," by Lina Eckenstein; "Rossetti," by Ford Madox Hueffer; and "Rembrandt," by Auguste Bréal. Other volumes promised will deal with Frederick Walker, Millet, Da Vinci, Wilkie, Cruikshank, Hogarth and Botticelli.

FREDERICK M. DE WITT, 318 Post Street, San Francisco, Cal., will publish shortly "De Witt's Guide to Central California," which not only describes San Francisco, but all the health and pleasure resorts and points of interest for a distance of 150 miles round about the metropolis of the Pacific coast. The book will be fully illustrated, and will be of a shape convenient to slip into a medium-sized pocket.

THE BRADLEY-WHITE CO., 220 Broadway, will publish at once a reference book entitled "What's What? at Home and Abroad," which is intended to supply the epicure, the sportsman, the vacationer, the connoisseur in gems, the lover, the housewife, and the man of affairs with information he is not likely to get in such convenient form. One of the features will be a "bill-of-fare vocabulary" describing upwards of 800 dishes.

KEGAN PAUL, TRENCH, TRÜBNER & Co. will publish shortly a book on famous book collectors by William Younger Fletcher, who has drawn his information very largely from new sources. He gives short histories, often accompanied by portraits, of book collectors like Lord Ashburnham, Sir Hans Sloane and Sir Kenelm Digby, Pepys, Cranmer and Laud and others. Careful accounts are given of historic collections as well as of collectors.

LEWIS, SCRIBNER & Co. have in preparation, for the Arctic Club, a book entitled "The White World," which will describe the adventurous side of the achievements of the explorers of the Far North. Among the contributors to the work are Admiral Schley, Walter Wellman, Dr. Cook, Professor Brewer, Lieutenant-Colonel Brainard, and Albert

White Vorse. The illustrations will consist of photographs taken during Arctic expeditions.

MCCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. have just ready "The Blazed Trail," a novel of the great pine woods, by Stewart Edward White; "The Madness of Philip," stories of childhood for grown people, by Josephine Dodge Daskam; "Next to the Ground," studies of out-of-door life on farm and woodland, by Martha McCulloch Williams; also, "The King and Queen of Hearts," a facsimile, with illustrations, of a curious old child's poem, by Charles Lamb, privately printed in 1805.

IN view of the growing interest in the study of nature Charles G. D. Roberts's new book, "The Kindred of the Wild: a Book of Animal Life," to be brought out in May by L. C. Page & Company, is timely. Messrs. Page now control Professor Roberts's entire works—"The Heart of the Ancient Wood," "The Forge in the Forest," "A Sister to Evangeline," "Earth's Enigmas," "By the Marshes of Minas," "A History of Canada," and "Complete Poems," having recently taken them over from his former publishers, Silver, Burdett & Co.

THE GRAFTON PRESS, New York, announce "The Official Golf Guide and Annual, for 1902," edited and compiled by W. G. van Tassel Sutphen, editor of Golf. A new feature will be specially prepared articles by F. G. Beach, Walter J. Travis, A. G. Lockwood, Miss Genevieve Hecker, Findlay S. Douglas and others. They have also in preparation a new and revised edition of the biography of the Empress Josephine, by Frederick A. Ober, published by the Merriam Company about the time they went into bankruptcy. Owing to the failure of the firm the book had hardly circulated, and may therefore be considered practically new in more than one respect.

CHARLES E. GOODSPEED, 5a Park Street, Boston, announces for publication in April "Ioläus, an Anthology of Friendship," by Edward Carpenter, the author of "Towards Democracy;" a volume of letters written by Earl Percy from Boston and New York during the American Revolution; also, two new books upon the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy, by Edwin Reed. These last two volumes will add new fuel to the flames of this vexed question. One volume will bear the title "Francis Bacon, Our Shakespeare," and the other will be devoted to a comparison of parallel passages from Bacon and Shakespeare, over 400 pages being given to such citations.

D. APPLETON & Co. have made arrangements to publish in this country Hesketh Prichard's important book of travel, entitled "Through Patagonia." It will be illustrated with twenty drawings, some of which are to be in color, by John Guille Millais, from sketches made on the spot by the author, together with a large number of photographs. Mr. Prichard is chiefly known in this country as the author, in collaboration with his mother, of novels like "A Modern Mercenary" and "Karadac, Count of Gersay." The Appletons have also secured for publication in the fall Frank T. Bullen's new novel, called "A Whaleman's Wife," part of the scene of which is laid in Vermont.

WE are reliably informed that there is no foundation of truth in that part of our notice of the theft of certain of Mr. John D. Crimmins's books, in last week's issue of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, that states that one bookseller refused to permit Mr. Crimmins to see the books in his possession, although Mr. Crimmins offered to pay for them. Mr. Crimmins never called upon the bookseller in question, and therefore neither requested to see the books nor offered to pay for them. Moreover, this very bookseller, whose reputation for honest dealing is unquestioned, did not purchase his books from Mr. Crimmins's secretary, but from a dealer; and when he learned the true state of affairs was at considerable trouble and expense in getting back certain of the books he had already sold.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation a complete edition of Poe's works, edited by Charles F. Richardson, Professor of Literature at Dartmouth College. The edition will give all the poems of 1827, the "Journal of Julius Rodman," and some hitherto uncollected passages from "The Rationale of Verse," said to be of much importance for Poe's theories. The name of G. P. Putnam, it is interesting to recall, appeared as the publisher on the early editions of three volumes of Poe's works—"The Raven, and Other Poems," 1845; "Tales," 1845; and "Eureka," 1848. The Messrs. Putnam have arranged for the publication in English of a new novel by Peter Rosegger, entitled "Earth and the Fullness Thereof," one of his romances of German peasant life. The translation is by Frances E. Skinner.

HERBERT S. STONE & Co. announce the following to be published some time this spring: "Mazel," a story by a new writer, Richard Fishguill, describing life in one of the southern universities; "The Romance of a Rogue," a new story by Joseph W. Sharts, who wrote the weird and powerful story of a madman, which is known as "Ezra Caine;" "The Carpenter Prophet," a life of Christ, by Charles William Pearson, whose heterodox doctrines recently caused his resignation from the Northwestern University; "The Rewards of Taste," a new book of essays by Dr. Norman Bridge, who a few years ago brought out a book entitled "The Penalties of Taste;" a Henry Miller edition of Louis E. Shipman's "D'Arcy of the Guards," with illustrations of reproductions of scenes from the play; also, a new edition of "The Carissima," by Lucas Malet.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will bring out shortly "Essays and Addresses by Sir James Paget," selected and arranged by one of his sons, Stephen Paget, a work published for the use of the medical profession only; "Some Unpublished Letters of Horace Walpole," edited by Sir Spencer Walpole; "Historical Essays and Reviews," by Dr. Mandell Creighton, sometime Bishop of London, edited by Louise Creighton; "Color Problems," a practical manual for the lay student of color, by Emily Noyes Vanderpoel; "Assaying and Metallurgical Analysis," for the use of students, chemists and assayers, by E. L. Rhead and A. Humboldt Sexton; "Goodly Union and Concord," sermons preached mainly in Westminster Abbey in the interests of Christian fraternity, by H. Hensley Henson, canon of Westminster; "The Small End of Great Problems," by the Rev. Dr. Brooke Herford; "A La Mode Cookery: Up-to-Date Recipes," by Mrs. De Salis; also, "Tales of My Father," by A. M. F., author of "Foreign Courts and Foreign Homes," etc.

THE most widely known and oftenest quoted verse in the English language is

"Thirty days hath November,
April, June and September,
February hath XXVIII alone,
And all the rest have XXXI."

It is the one thing learned at school that nobody forgets, the one aid to memory that really helps remembrance. Yet probably not one person in a hundred thousand who habitually use it in every-day life recollects or has ever known the name of its author. Richard Grafton, who wrote this immortal poem, was one of the earliest and most distinguished of English publishers. He embarked in the business only about sixty years later than Caxton, "the father of English printing," and between 1539 and 1553 brought out "The Great Bible," (Matthew's,) "Coverdale's Translation of the New Testament," "Actes of Parliament," and other books. The name of Grafton has lately been rescued from obscurity, and made familiar to the reading public at least, by a firm of New York publishers, who have established The Grafton Press, thereby reviving a title honored 350 years ago.

T. FISHER UNWIN has just ready a new work on "Labor Legislation, Labor Movements, and Labor Leaders," by George Howell, recently member of Parliament for North East Bethnal Green. The book shows, among other things, how the two great political parties in Great Britain dealt with labor questions, and to whom was due the remedial legislation of the last seventy-five years of the nineteenth century. Mr. Unwin has also just ready Dr. G. M. Theal's new work, "The Beginning of South African History." The book commences with a description of the remains of paleolithic man found in South Africa. Next appears an account of the Bushmen and Hottentots as they were when Europeans first visited the country, with several chapters upon the Bantu, giving a more minute description of these people than has yet been published. The ancient gold mines of Rhodesia are then dealt with, and the Mohammedans in Eastern Africa are described. The Portuguese discoveries, settlements, wars and intercourse with the natives are minutely entered into. The book, which is the result of many years' close research, is illustrated with maps.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 29th inst. a new Household edition of the "Poetical Works of Bayard Taylor," edited by Mrs. Marie Hansen Taylor, with a biographical sketch, portrait and illustrations, all printed from entirely new plates; "The Son of a Fiddler," by Jennette Lee, author of "A Pillar of Salt," the story of a boy who, raised on a New England farm under Puritanic training, goes to Boston for a better musical training, and, after passing through trials and temptations during which he forgets his aspirations, is finally roused to become faithful again to the heritage of his father; "A Translation of the First Six Books of Virgil's Æneid," by Harlan H. Ballard; "Tuscan Sculpture," volume xi, of the Riverside Art Series, edited by Estelle M. Hurl, which contains an essay on some characteristics of Tuscan sculpture in the 15th century, a list of books of reference and an historical directory to the pictures mentioned and a table of biographical data; "Hezekiah's Wives," by Lillie Hamilton French, a graceful, dainty story of the matrimonial experiences of a canary, a great singer, and a difficult bird to please; "Samuel de Champlain," by Henry D. Sedgwick, Jr., a new volume in the Riverside Biographical Series; also, Clara Louise Burnham's popular novel, "A Great Love," in the Riverside Paper Series.

HENRY HOLT & Co. announce, in addition to the books noted in our last week's issue, the following: "Specimens of English Verse," by Professor R. M. Alden, of Leland Stanford University; "The Elements of Physics," by Professor Fernando Sanford, also of Leland Stanford University, designed to serve both as a text-book and laboratory manual for high schools; "An Introduction to the Calculus," by Professor W. H. Echols, of the University of Virginia; "Four-place Logarithmic Tables for Use in the Entrance Examinations of the Sheffield Scientific School;" Fulda's "Der Talisman," the powerful allegorical play which troubled the German Emperor and his censor when produced in Berlin and delighted New Yorkers when given here, edited by Dr. Edward Meyer, of Western Reserve University; the same author's comedieta, "Unter Vier Augen," bound with Bendix's "Der Prozess," both edited by William A. Hervey, instructor in Columbia University; Von Kleist's story of an humble patriot, "Michael Kohlhaas," edited by Dr. Wm. Kurrehmyer, of Johns Hopkins University; Wiedermann's "Biblische Geschichte," edited by Professor L. A. Rhoades, of the University of Illinois; "Quatres Contes de Mérimée," edited by Professor F. C. L. Van Steenderen, of Iowa University; also, "A First French Reader," by Professor V. E. François, of the University of Michigan, and Professor F. P. Giroud, of Girard College.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplaced, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

Putnam's Sons will be held at the office of the Corporation, No. 29 West 23d Street, in the City of New York, on the 17th of April, 1902, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of electing Directors and Inspectors of Election for the ensuing year, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

IRVING PUTNAM, Secretary.
NEW YORK CITY, March 20th, 1902.

For 1902

PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL

(Thirtieth Year)

In response to the desires of the book trade we shall publish the forthcoming issue of THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL, to be ready at the opening of the active Fall season, in August, 1902, to the publishers' catalogues contained therein. The books will be indexed by author, title and, practically, by subject or class. The name of series, the price, and name of publisher will also be given, so that any book contained in the ANNUAL may be located at once by whatsoever clue the user may have. The Index will be printed in two columns to the page, in readable type, full face letters being used to make reference to authors' names more convenient.

With a Complete Index

The bulk of the volume, as heretofore, will consist of the latest CATALOGUES OF AMERICAN PUBLISHERS, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm names, with the smaller lists and advertisements of single books at the end. The patent "Duplex Index," having the alphabet printed on the concave surface as well as on the margin of the page, enables instantaneous reference to the catalogues and the lists, whether the book is open or shut.

These lists, thus bound together, present in their combination so convenient and time-saving a working tool as to have made THE TRADE LIST ANNUAL for upwards of a quarter of a century indispensable to every one who has any interest in the purchase or sale of books. With the reference index to the books listed in the publishers' catalogues its practical usefulness will be enhanced an hundred fold.

The work will be offered to the trade in two styles :

With the Index, $5 00

Without the Index, 1 50

if ordered and paid for in advance of publication. Orders, stating whether the volume is desired with or without the index, should be registered at

The Office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY
(P. O. Box 943) 298 Broadway, New York

☛ We shall also supply the new volume of the ENGLISH REFERENCE LIST for which we control the American market. Further particulars as to price will be given later.

Do Not Overlook

ALIENS

By Mary Tappan Wright

IT IS a novel that will almost surely, in our opinion, force its way to the top. It describes the South and Southern people as seen in Northern eyes, and it will make talk in the South. But its great point is that it is a tremendously good story and deals with real, flesh and blood people.

NONE BUT

By HAMBLÉN SEARS

MERTON BALFORTH, a lieutenant in the American army, riding up the Hudson River in 1780 in the neutral country between Tarrytown and Croton Point, on a special mission to General Washington, comes upon a young girl travelling alone in her broken coach. He takes her under his protection to a tavern where a group of cowboys and British officers in disguise insult her. She is defended by Balforth and they are about to be killed when she uses her wits and tells the company that Balforth and she have run away to be married. They become interested and force the ceremony. The couple are married, and it develops that Deborah Philipse is a Tory maiden living in New York City. Balforth takes her northward and leaves her at an old house. He then, by accident, overhears an interview between Benedict Arnold and André when André agreed to give up West Point. He tries to notify Washington; is captured as a spy of the British; goes through an examination at Croton Point; is sent on to Arnold at West Point; escapes and finally notifies the Commander-in-Chief at Arnold's house on the morning when the discovery of his escape is made. He is then sent by Washington back to Croton Point where he obeys orders and meantime makes friends with the two American soldiers, Robert Curtis and John Acton. Curtis is endeavoring to capture a spy of Benedict Arnold's who is constantly seen about the country but never taken. There is a report that Major André is to be rescued as he crosses the Hudson above Tarrytown. The three friends are detailed with soldiers to prevent the capture and take the British soldiers sent there to effect it. The house turns out to be the one in which Balforth has left Deborah. He commands the squad detailed at the house; finds her there; is in doubt as to whether she is in league with the British troops and has a struggle between duty to his country and his love for the girl. He finally succeeds in capturing all but one man who is recognized as he escaped as the British spy Curtis is searching for. He helps the girl southward towards New York. He receives word to report to Washington on special duty and from the General is instructed to enter New York, capture the spy who is known as Hazeltine and accomplish two other missions. Balforth with Curtis and Acton enter the city of New York. They are attacked there, defend themselves successfully, and Balforth, assuming the character of a British messenger, reports to Sir Henry

Clinton while the latter is having a ball at his house. There he meets Deborah and the situations change. She knows him as an American soldier, and as he defended her from capture up the Hudson, she now protects him, at the same time disagreeing with his point of view. The story then proceeds in New York. A dinner at the Baroness Riedesel's brings up further difficulties: a duel results with an English officer, and Balfort is getting in greater and greater danger, when Deborah asks him to help her. It seems that she ran away originally from New York because she was to be forced to marry her cousin. The cousin now presses his suit, and inferences are brought to bear on them. Balfort consents to meet the man. The meeting takes place at night in the woods, and Balfort discovers that he is the girl's intended. He is in fact her cousin, the British spy they are all searching for—Hazeltine. He immediately captures him on the spot, which enrages the girl and ends all love affair between them. Curtis arrives on the spot at this moment and recognizes in Deborah Philipse his own sister, and in the man he has been searching for, his own cousin. He will not allow him to be taken to Washington, but flies with him and Hazeltine escapes. An attempt is then made by Balfort, Curtis and Acton to capture Benedict Arnold. The description of this attempt is based on the historic attempt of a man named Champ. It fails, and as they are endeavoring to make their escape, Hazeltine discovers them and the two squads fight on the bank of the Hudson River. In the fracas Balfort and Hazeltine have an individual combat in which Balfort kills the other, but is wounded himself, and while his friend escapes he is captured and imprisoned in the Sugar House Prison. He stays there for four or five months and is then, as the reader becomes gradually aware later on, found by a British officer who is put on the search by Deborah, taken away unconscious to the Baroness Riedesel's house, and during his illness and recovery Deborah becomes his nurse there. Finally, owing to his wounds, he is parolled and aided out of New York by the Baroness Riedesel and her friends, and he and Deborah riding northward come to the inn where they first met. There they find that by Deborah's arrangement her brother Robert and Acton have come to meet them. They are again married, and the story ends with their departure eastward, where Balfort is to join his regiment.

Some Books That Will Sell

AT THE head of the list we expect to see The Hound of the Baskervilles, by A. CONAN DOYLE. Here for the first time Sherlock Holmes appears in a complete novel. We are printing an enormous first edition, but you will have to come soon if you want any of it. Ready April 8.

What is the one selling quality that most recent American fiction has lacked? Novelty. You will find in The Blazed Trail a new type in a new setting: the lumber-jack of the north, in his battle with the great forest. "To think that all that superb material has been lying there all these years," says Robert Barr, the novelist, "and no one ever had the sense to see it. I do not expect ever to read anything as good as that again." The book was out last Tuesday, and in its second edition the same day.

And One That Is Selling

The House With the Green Shutters, of course. You've seen it in the "best selling" lists. We are now printing a seventh edition, an enlarged one, by the way, for we had to increase it after going to press. This book has come to stay. You can help it along and it will help you along.

The English Exploration of America.

We are living in a new period of expansion and great changes on the map of the world, such as there has not been since the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. It is interesting, at such a time, to look back to the period when our forefathers expanded into this New World.

THE FOLLOWING OLD SOUTH LEAFLETS HAVE BEEN ADDED TO THE SERIES:

"John Cabot's Discovery of North America," "Sir Francis Drake on the California Coast," "Frobisher's First Voyage," "Sir Humphrey Gilbert's Expedition to Newfoundland," "Raleigh's First Roanoke Colony," "Gosnold's Settlement at Cuttyhunk," "Captain John Smith's Description of New England," and Richard Hakluyt's Discourse on Western Painting."

These leaflets are Nos. 115-122 in the Old South series, which is now so large. They are made up from original documents of the period, and are all accompanied by careful historical and bibliographical notes. Sold for five cents a copy, they place at the service of the schools and the public a most important mass of historical papers not otherwise easily accessible.

The Annual Literary Index, 1901

Including Periodicals, American and English; Essays, Book-Chapters, etc.; with Author-Index, Bibliographies, Necrology, and Index to Dates of Principal Events. Edited by W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER, with the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX complements the "Annual American Catalogue" of books, published each year, by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published during the year of its issue; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies; (5) authors deceased; (6) dates of principal events during the year. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

"Of great value to all who would keep advised of the topics and writers in the periodical literature of the day."
—Universalist Quarterly.
